Throughout the ups and downs of isolation, creativity was my saving grace. Creativity simultaneously provided an escape and the ability to process what was currently happening in the world. Together, my dogs and I used photography to connect to the present moment, become curious of our home and find laughter staging each photo. This experience has led me to wake up each day with the passion to create something new out of the unexpected.

Paintingf kept me from getting depressed. I felt so stuck because I couldn't leave my home and because my son's transition to the new group home was disrupted I felt like depression was creeping up on me. But being able to paint to get my mind off things was what kept me from deteriorating health wise. I'm proud to be able to paint landscapes.

A Lifelong Battle

I once thought there was no other way to stop the pain. After all it was killing me and, driving me insane. I suffered in silence for so long. Everyone who thought they knew me was wrong. I wasn't the happy outgoing girl they knew, if only, that was true ... Countless pills, months of hospitalization, and years of therapy had no power against the tears, overwhelming thoughts, and misery. I had to go through pain I wouldn't wish on my worst enemy. I finally realized my self worth and started working towards recovery. With a combination of miracles, the few professionals who didn't give up on me and my own hard work and strength I get to see my future. Something that for far too long was unsure. Never forget you matter and fighting is worth it. You can fight through the bad days as they hit. You get a fresh start everyday. I promise you everything will be okay.

Tiana Keen, 18, Regina

I wrote this during my 4th hospital admission last year, to remind myself that as lonely, broken, and beyond help as I feel, I have not gone through all these years of suffering to give up now. I was given a second chance to live my life, which many people aren't given, and I plan to use it to help others who are struggling with their mental health.

I did these pieces as a tribute to the ceremony, feasts and Pow Wow's that are missing from 2020. It brings a calm to my mental health seeing them and know that these connections to all my relations will come again and gives me hope for 2021.

"Who are you?"

I started taking some photos when I got back home from my mental health journey. This beautiful owl showed up in my barn and let me take pictures. I looked it up and it appears to be a Northern Saw-Whet owl

This Place

They tell me not to worry, that the sun will always shine, but what they do not know Is I'm trapped inside my mind.

It's not a place I want to be, or a place I want to share, it's a heavy stormy place, where there is very little air.

A place of rainy days, where nothing seems quite just right, a place I often wonder, Will the daylight break the night.

A place that makes my heart pound hard, that sets my skin on fire, a place that takes my sleep from me, as I lay wondering what things may transpire.

> This place is hard to leave behind, it's tangles hard to escape, all I wish and dream for, is my freedom to take its shape.

This place it has a labelled name, which gets stamped on it all, they tell me this place I'm in, Is a place of carryall.

Carryall the burden, carryall the worry, carryall the things in life, and do so with great fury.

I'd like to leave this place very, very soon, I'd like to leave this darkness, before it all consumes.

I want to feel the sunshine, like they say is on the other side, but it's hard to feel the warmth of it, When you're still cold as if you've died.

One day I know I will leave this place, one day I'll see that sun, I just hope so very much, It happens before my life is done.

I want to find the joy in things, live in the here and now, I know it will happen, one day, some way, some how.

Brooke Van Nes , 34, Hudson Bay

Writing is a really useful tool to help release thoughts and feelings from the mind into a positive form and really helps me reflect on what I'm going through at the time of writing. Having a creative outlet of emotion is when the best art is made.

Working with stones has had an amazing therapeutic effect on my anxiety and depression. Finding the right stone is quite mindful, the feel, the sound and earthy smell of the stones keeps me focused on my work. The healing this process has given me is amazing, 1 never knew I had this creativity in me!! My Creator guides my hands during the creation of each piece and each one is smudged before it leaves my home.

This year I submitted three pieces, all of which have wildlife in them. I feel a sense of well being when I am in nature, so taking these pictures, then reproducing them on canvas gives me a sense of being connected to nature and wildlife. Its peaceful to meditate, and work on these pieces which provides me with the opportunity to maintain my mental health.

My camera is always my go to when I need to deal with Life it makes me use a different perspective on my daily challenges. I was stuck out-of-country for eight months due to covid. Death came knocking in a huge waythis past year taking both my parents, two life-long friends from covid and now both of my furry companions.

My faithful companion of 21 years, my cat Cyrano. All my life I have had cat companions who help me with daily stress by giving, affection, amusement, consolation, and purpose. They have kept me on the earth when I have felt ready to give up.

Back To School

This painting was inspired by the joy and excitement of going back to school. After these past school years where students have spent a lot of time learning on line, children seem more excited than ever to return to the schools they've loved and missed. That big yellow school bus has become such a welcome sight!

The Dance of Distancing

Being away from family and friends. The physical distancing between us, not being able to reach out and hug has been a real struggle within the pandemic for many of us. This piece explored that for me, thinking around how we can connect even at distance.

Spending time drawing esp-ecially during covid,filled lonely hours particularly in the winter months! It was a great escape for me for hours.kept me sane and gave me a reason to get up in the morning. Because of covid I tried new hobbies and enti ed roe to.get back to my art which I might neveF have done otherwise!

Gloria Pawliuk, Pense

Rounding the corner of the street, we were met by. The Family ... It's the small things in life that can sometimes bring the most reassurance. While the world around us changes dramatically.

Camdyn, 9 & Jagger Van Nes, 6, Hudson Bay

Painting makes me feel happy - Jagger Painting is very satisfying - Camdyn

I painted this piece because I wanted to portray the comfort that music is to me. Through emphasis of the color in the guitar, I wanted to show the light music is to me in dark times. When I feel stressed, music is the way I cope.

Lexi Ifield, 5, Warman

Art makes me feel creative, happy, silly, focused and steady!

Jessie Wood, 15, Saskatoon

Throughout the pandemic, it is required that we wear masks to help protect ourselves and others. This painting is titled "Safety" (acrylic on canvas), shows a girl wearing her mask and represents the feeling of safety and protection that I feel when I wear my mask. It helps my mental health knowing that I am doing my part to help prevent the spread of Covid-19.

Kids Corner

In the Kids Corner & Honorable Mentions pages, you will find art and poems to which our judges wanted to give special commendation for the impact they're sure to have on anyone who gets to see their work.

We are thrilled to see the talent in our province, and we are very proud of what we are able to showcase! Thank you to everyone for your submissions!!

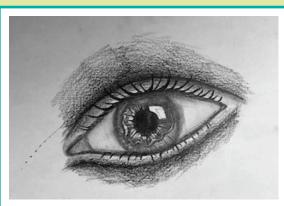

David Hill (Tiny Twister), 9, Regina

I made a superhero named Covid-19 Man out of balloons that is able to fight Covid-19. He is wearing a mask, his cape is also a mask, and he has magic hand sanitizer (with a blinking multi-coloured light inside that can shoot hand sanitizer out of his hands) as his super powers. He was a fun balloon superhero to make to fight Covid-19 even if just in my mind and for fun!.

Olivia LePage, 17, Saskatoon

Equilibrium. This piece has a perfect balance of warm and cool. The heat of a nice summer day along with the breeze that follows. Both seem harsh alone but together are quite complementing. Just like the ups and downs of everyday lifes, one does not come with out the other.

Rylee Krupski, 13, Regina

See How Far I've Come. Drawing is a way for me to release my anxiety and stress. It calms me and I am always proud of what it becomes.

Ryder Granger, 9, Saskatoon

My mom and brother had gotten Covid-19. My day and I went to our cabin to isolate. There were some beautiful sunsets there, this is one.

Rylee Morin-Boussahmine, 8, La Ronge

Art helps my mental health. I love to draw and color to express my feelings and ideas.

It's Okay To Not Be Okay

Do you have burdens to carry On your shoulder day by day? Have you grown weak and weary, And you wanted to breakaway? Hey, it's okay to not be okay.

You're lonely, your eyes are teary. You want your sadness to go away. There's no need for you to hurry. Take a minute, an hour or a day. Coz it's okay to not be okay.

Does being yourself feel so scary? Are you afraid of people might say? Only you who knows your real story. And "nobody's perfect", is not a cliche. So, it's okay to not be okay.

You keep pretending that you're cheery. Yet inside your sky is nothing but gray. Always have a poker face on, it's silly. Stay strong, is that really your play? But it's okay to not be okay.

Someone's listening, so do not worry. Ask and reach out, help is on the way. Your life is precious, you are worthy. Go ahead, look in the mirror and say, "It's okay if I'm not okay."

Jammie Trinidad , Regina Sometimes, it's hard for us to admit that we are not doing fine. We wear a mask to hide what's truly we feel. It's even harder to ask for other people's help, but always remember that at the end of the day, the most important things are our well being and our mental health.

Forever Lost Happiness

How did these days become so dreary How did these nights become into years Why did I keep it in, should have let out the tears How did the Truth turn into Fear How did all my questions become so clear How did my life become so bleary How did my Happiness Just Disappear Arjun Brar, 13, Saskatoon This poem reminds me how everyone has to go through a time like this at least once in their lifetime. It reminds me however you are hurt you should not give up.

I Suffer In Silence

I tell people "I'm not feeling well" because that's what they understand. I can't say, My heart is broken, Im broken. I suffer in silence because they look at me, mixed confusion and pity. I smile because people don't want to see tears without seeing the pain. I sit in a dark room with the blinds drawn to block out the sun. Tired to tired, to load this Russian roulette gun. The sun shines light onto my scars and I don't want to see them today. Stereotypes fall and crush me, stupid, drunk, lazy. So I suffer in silence because the world doesn't want my pain. Who has time for a broken soul when we all have our living to do. Who has time to put me back together again, with some kind of magic glue When all the kings horses and all the kings men left me laying in the ditch, or in the lion's den So I suffer in silence, and I tell them "I'm not feeling well, I'll call you tomorrow then " And then it's back to my room where the monsters hide, I'm waiting for the light inside.

CMHA Saskatchewan's success is due to our committed staff and volunteers, government support, financial help from community agencies, and most importantly, the support and generosity of donors like you. The Canadian Mental Health Association is one of the oldest and largest community-based human service organizations in Saskatchewan.

Our Vision

Mentally healthy people in a healthy society

Our Mission

CMHA (Saskatchewan Division) Inc. is a volunteer-based organization which works in partnership with communities and CMHA National, to support and promote the rights of persons with mental illness to maximize their full potential; and promote and enhance the mental health and well-being of all members of the community.
